How many roads must a man travel down... In quest for hollow fulfillment? Elon seeks to conquer Mars. Mark seeks to rule your minds. Donald seeks the prime deals. Vladimir seeks the broad throne. Big boys with big games on the grand stage.

Even if you conquered every planet, subjugated the collective mind, struck the best deals ever, and ruled sovereign over the world... A gaping void would yet be screaming in the dead center of your reality. How about a change of direction?

How far must one truly go in this never-ending quest for fulfillment?

Elon Musk is chasing his mantle of titanhood by the conquest of Mars. Mark Zuckerberg seeks to subjugate the collective mind with his algorithmic network. Donald Trump hopes to be forever famous by making the ultimate deal. Vladimir Putin will not rest until he's crowned the sovereign of the great Russian Empire.

Should they all, one day, meet the consummation of these pipe dreams, they would still be left with a gaping void in the middle of their being.

Why must you seek so far, Elon? Conquer the planets of your mind. You will be a titan extraordinaire. Why must you seek to control the minds of others, Mark? Establish the absolute network of your own mental patterns.

What deal do you hope to make, Donald, when you are yet to negotiate peace between the polarized parties of your own being. And Vladimir, old comrade, why not become the lord sovereign of the United States of Awareness instead?

Here we are. Establishing meta-cognitive colonies on the planes of our awareness. Programming the reconciled matrix of interconnected awareness. Making the ultimate deals for balance and liberation. Ascending as the sovereigns of our unconditioned awareness.

Then, please. Elon, Mark, Donald, Vladimir, all you big boys with your big games. Sometime, turn your efforts inward, face the void that you pursue out there. Your pursuits out there will only ever be consummated in fine form when the inner blueprint has been perfected.

All these grand operations out there, they are simply metaphors for our awareness. The processes we undergo to fulfill ourselves and reconcile our own existence. I do thank you for these fantastic dramas. May they catalyze the minds of many in a quest for true fulfillment.

Even there, in the absolute consummation of our inner workings, we must yet resign from ownership, from trying to jail all of that into our subjective prisons. There is only ever peace when you resign from the finite self and its agendas, releasing yourself with your all into a natural expression of what is. Like an immaculate mirror of reality.

Design not yourself, make not too many designs. Allow for the natural emergence of the fullness of potentials that you carry. That's all folks – keep it real.
