Each station and domain in our lives hides a conscious essence. Our human life-cycle culminates with the alignment and synthesis of these yields. What we extracted, what we reconciled, it will ascend into the unification of our human life.

Our octagon of conscious realms may be the source of countless legends and mystic models. It's also a most simple living reality. Not a matter of high philosophy – but a matter of attention, reflection, and extraction. Into crowned alignment.

Beyond the integration of our essence, the reconciliation and consolidation of our life's imprints and yields, there is the calling for harmonization and alignment. The synchronization of your ripened and refined potentials into a synergetic and radiant embodiment. At this final station of the human journey, your life-cycle is crowned, ascending to its rightful throne.

Here we have our macro life-cycle, our lives as a whole, and then we have countless micro life-cycles, the processes in diverse contexts that undergo the same process. All of it cycling, progressing, from baselines into insights, into impressions, into potentials, into directions, into engagement, integration, and finally alignment.

Infants born into a context, our baseline. Be present to its truth. Opening our eyes and observing the environment. Hold on to your insights and visions.

Receiving imprints from the environment and reflecting. Refine the potential in your emotions. Dreaming into the horizon that opens. Explore the sphere of your potentials.

Struck down from the clouds – then take aim and plant your roots. Establish the will of your way. Then set to your works, diligent and meticulous. Skillfully engaged in transformation. Come harvest time, take count of your yields. Place them in the cauldron, begin the process of refinement. Islands of essence established in your caldera. The currents in your ocean are reconciled.

Synchronized and harmonized, you ascend to the top of the tree of your life. But please, never claim the crown at the zenith as yours. Simply allow nature to operate as it may. Never hijack that radiant crown of alignment for a celestial kingdom of your ego. Do that and you will be cast down from your hollow heavens, ruminating on the grass of your earth again.

Such are the journeys in life we ponder. Forget not to carry the essence from each of your stations. With this, we conclude our octagon of ponderings. Absorb, contemplate, ruminate. The journey continues above and beyond.

Seven stations prior to the crown in our ponderings. Revisit, rewind, recollect the essence from each. They are all neatly in the playlist. These journeys in the octagon are everywhere in our lives. Go find them and integrate their essence into alignment. Many of our flavored mini-series run in sync with this same timeless pattern.

Then take the epic journey. Visit the stations of your being and becoming. Integrate the stations of your human awareness into a singularity of consciousness.
