Three minutes of your life absolutely wasted! In watching today's stubbornly pointless reel. Doggy barks and whines so that's all hilarious. Or is there a secret major point concealed somewhere? Probably not. Wouldn't tell you if there was were. Or not.

If you are one of the HERO READERS here. Got all the way to the sixth and seventh lines of this long description. Make yourself known. We'll throw a party for the occasion. If you find the secret point hidden into this dumb video. Special rewards issued at the end of the era. For you yes. (Other reels have no secret points. Don't bother with them.)

Waddup! Just checking in, my daily chore. There's no point to any of this today. As it happens. My dog has an opinion. Yep, there's a point there, more so than in my ramblings.

Also, a bit down with the weather. The climate is unstable. So, you know, whatever. Just ramble along. It's not like anyone watches these past the first three seconds anyway, so whatever that happens after that, all up to me.

Why do I even bother? Well, certainly not because of a massive audience, or any sort of prospects in there. I just do this because I feel like doing it. It emerges, sort of comes into being, and so I put my time, attention, efforts, toward saying whatever it is that I say, for whatever reason. All right? That's all. So, again, sorry, no point to anything that I'm saying today. Just ticking the box here. Daily recording done.

My dog has a lot to say, though. Yeah, and I kind of agree. That's pretty much what I'm saying in all of these series, ramblings, as well. Just barking from an altitude, into the valleys, makes a nice echo. So there's a point to that. Not that anyone actually hears at the other end what's being said. Just some noise happening. All right.

Okay. All right. All right, so we're all getting impatient here. Just gonna wrap it, move along. All right. Whatever comes, comes. Whatever that doesn't, doesn't. And that's the measure of it. All right.

P.S. All of this is actually completely saturated with concealed, subliminal, secret points. So, you know, see if you can find them, you might get a special price. All right? Prices issued at the end of the era.

I dare you. Share a post that makes absolutely no point. Gives you zero social capital. Gives you, personally, nothing at all. Gives me questionable rewards. Nothing.

And that's a weird cut. I don't know what I was going to say. No matter. So, as mentioned, this is absolutely pointless. So, rolling on. But I did find the toilet sign, right? And there's recycle cans here that no one uses, because no one knows what the hell they're for. All these different colors here. So that's all also utterly pointless, even though there is a clue of an idea there, in the right general direction.

He just will not shut up, even though there is no point to any of this. Well, you know. I like to torture my audiences. And I like to keep my mouth flapping. That's all there is to it. Yep. That's all there is to it. Just wrap it here. P.S. Follow the White Rabbit.
