Your old order of illusion has collapsed. Reborn you must be. Not as that awakened soul in love with yourself. As a simple basic infant. Born again plain and naked. Present as you are. Eat that raw and pure grass of your ground of being. Wherever that you landed. Whatever that you are. Dumb and unassuming. That's the measure of that. Stay there.

Death to your illusions. Your old order of being has become untenable. Has collapsed under its own impossibility. Then reborn you must be. Life still goes on.

Straight into a self-admiring awakened soul with eloquent teachings, is it? That, my friend, is simply your last ditch attempt to salvage your old order of illusions.

We are reborn as simple infants. Dumb and basic. That's the measure of that. Then eat that raw grass of your ground of being. It's clear and pure. As it is. Clear and pure, present as you are. Identity uncrafted, illusions absent.

There's your baseline. Nowhere else. Especially not in the realm of designer divinities, the whole world orbiting your supposed plane of higher awareness.

Then die to your illusions and be reborn in the basic. Fresh popped out from the womb of conscious mother nature. Unveiled, unassuming, even unknowing. As it is.

Wherever that you landed, that's where you are. Whatever the caliber of your body and mind, that's the measure of that. The ground of being is an uncrafted plane of awareness. Stay there.
