The creator creates the creations for the creatures – right? But how is this fabric of creation – and where does it lead us? First: Existential basics on the Creator and Witness planes of Consciousness. Gazing at the canvas of potential patterns. Into the interplay of Seer and Seen – Dynamic Awareness and Formative Substance. A creation unfolds.

Then a tour of the eight primary realms for humans. For your Ground of Being. For your Reason and Orientation. For your Emotions and Empathy. For your Hopes and Potentials. For your

Will and Direction. For your Works and Transformation. For your Yields for Integration. Into your Alignment and Fulfillment. Each in a myriad of flavored permutations.

Enter. Explore. Experience. These are then your realms. We only ever share the blueprints and the training demonstrations. It is all within you as it is – only clear lacking definition, behind muddy veils of ignorance. Unveil. Become. In freedom.

If there be a creator, surely there should be a creation as well. Indeed. But not the creation of bricks and brackets, of trinkets and buckets, for peddling on the marketplace of public demand. Instead, the creation of ecosystems of consciousness. Extracting, refining, weaving together primary archetypes of essential awareness. Into a great loom of convergence for the consummation of our lives.

Yet before we enter into the nitty gritties of the creation, let us establish some existential baselines. Creator and Created. Seer and Seen. Dynamic Awareness and Formative Substance. That's the basic coupling. At the primal root, simply undifferentiated consciousness.

Gazing into the formative world: When active, with agency – the Creator. When passive, in reflection – the Witness. Should the Creator fall from the pristine balance, intoxicated by the creative power, pursuing the creations in separation, it would become conditioned – just as every one of us.

Where consciousness ever rewinds, decouples from attachment to agency. There we have the reflective Witness, the facilitator in service of all, and there the creations remain pure. Then how is the fabric of the creation? What are the systems of the designer? In short.

Realms for the ground of being. Simple presence. As it is, as we are. Cognitive realms for the brain. Reason, intellect and orientation. Affective realms for the heart. Into pure emotion and empathy. Expanding realms for the heart-mind. Curiosity and discovery of our potentials.

Stern concentrated realms. Establishing our will and direction to the point. Realms of engagement. For skillful means and transformative operation. Contemplative realms. For the gathering and integration of the fullness of your being. Realms of alignment. For the harmonic emergence of our unity.

Realms of our awareness, stations on our journeys, cast and flavored in a thousand permutations. Behind the scenes, directed by the elemental compass of underlying influences. More on that later.

Such be the creations of the creator present. May you enter, find some meaning and fulfilment in them. As you enter, as you explore, as you experience, they become your realms. No one else's. Open-source archetypal systems of harmony. Blueprints for the kingdom of heaven – on earth and within you. How many mandalas of deities, how many mystic universes, will you find in exploring these realms?

But one can only ever bring the donkey to the waters. None can be forced to drink from the stream of living waters. Thank you and farewell.
